

THE DAILY NEWS:

What's Right? What's Wrong? What's Happening?

The media landscape is rapidly changing with unprecedented cuts to newsrooms and the growth of digital platforms.

How does that impact journalistic accountability, access to information, and ultimately, democracy? How do changes in the ways we receive civic information influence our ability to maintain an informed citizenry? What is the role of media, government and the public in safeguarding Canadians' fundamental right to credible information?
