Ethics in the Evening

MEDIA COVERAGE OF TERRORISM

Media coverage of terrorist attacks – like other disasters and crises- follows patterns. In this presentation, Dr. Kevin Quigley will lead a discussion about those patterns, examining the volume and tone of coverage, who gets blamed, and who gets praised for their actions. Does media coverage of terrorism differ from other emergency events, such as natural disasters, industrial failures, pandemics and cyber events, and if so, how, and does media coverage of these events lead us to appropriate conclusions?
